

Would you like to replace future paper correspondence from Direct Endoscopy and Omnipath Pathology with a secure encrypted message delivered directly into your clinical application?

Direct Endoscopy and Omnipath Pathology can deliver correspondence via secure messaging, the service is free and all you need to do is locate your PKI certificate and register for a download client.

Go to the Argus website - www.argusconnect.com.au - and select the 'New to Argus' link on the home page. You will be asked to provide a number of details in order for us to release the software licence to you.

- Section 1 Enter the authorised person's name and practice email address [save and continue]
- Section 2 Enter organisation name, address and organisation type [save and continue]
- Section 3 Enter the preferred contact person's details, and technical contact details [save and continue]
- Section 4 Select 'Argus installation' [save and continue]
- Section 5 Select the health category the organisation provides, and enter in the 'Dedicated Argus email' field the default address of argus@argus.net.au.
Also enter the email address to receive error notifications (usually the practice email address, it should not be the dedicated Argus email address). Advise if you have an existing PKI (if not, Argus can provide one at installation) and select to receive messages [save and continue]
- Section 6 Select your clinical software application and operating system [save and continue]
- Section 7 List the Practitioners that will be using Argus. Practitioners are listed on the NHSD so other Argus users are able to add them to their address book so they too can send clinical reports to your organisation. The number of sessions per week will determine if a Practitioner is considered to be part time (5 or less) or full time (6 or more). Note each site requires a minimum of one full time equivalent practitioner. [save and continue]
- Section 8 Payment summary screen. Enter DOBAYSIDE in the promotion code field. Green confirmation that the code is correct will be displayed. The promotion code will remove the cost of installation and subscription, leaving a zero balance.
- Section 9 Once a subscription has been generated the Practice will receive an email welcoming them to Argus—the email will contain further instructions relating to the installation of Argus. A practice representative will need to call Argus Support team to book an installation, which can generally be done within 24—48 hours of subscribing.
